Opportunity for credit through individual school districts:

The Literacy Connection is not offering Ashland University study group credit. We are supporting the current trend of credits earned for professional development within districts. We will provide general information for districts that are interested in offering college credit for staff members who attend the two full day sessions with the literacy experts, as well as meet course expectations to complete the number of contact hours required by the college or university providing class credit for your staff development opportunities. Your district may choose to incorporate some of these ideas in their proposal or they might draft their own content.

Please visit our website, www.theliteracyconnection.org for up to date information. For questions concerning our program go to our website or contact Kathleen Taps at ktaps@icloud.com.
